

PROMOTE SAFETY

Safety is as simple as ABC - Always Be Careful.

*If you know safety, you will have no injury.
If you have no safety, you will know injury.*

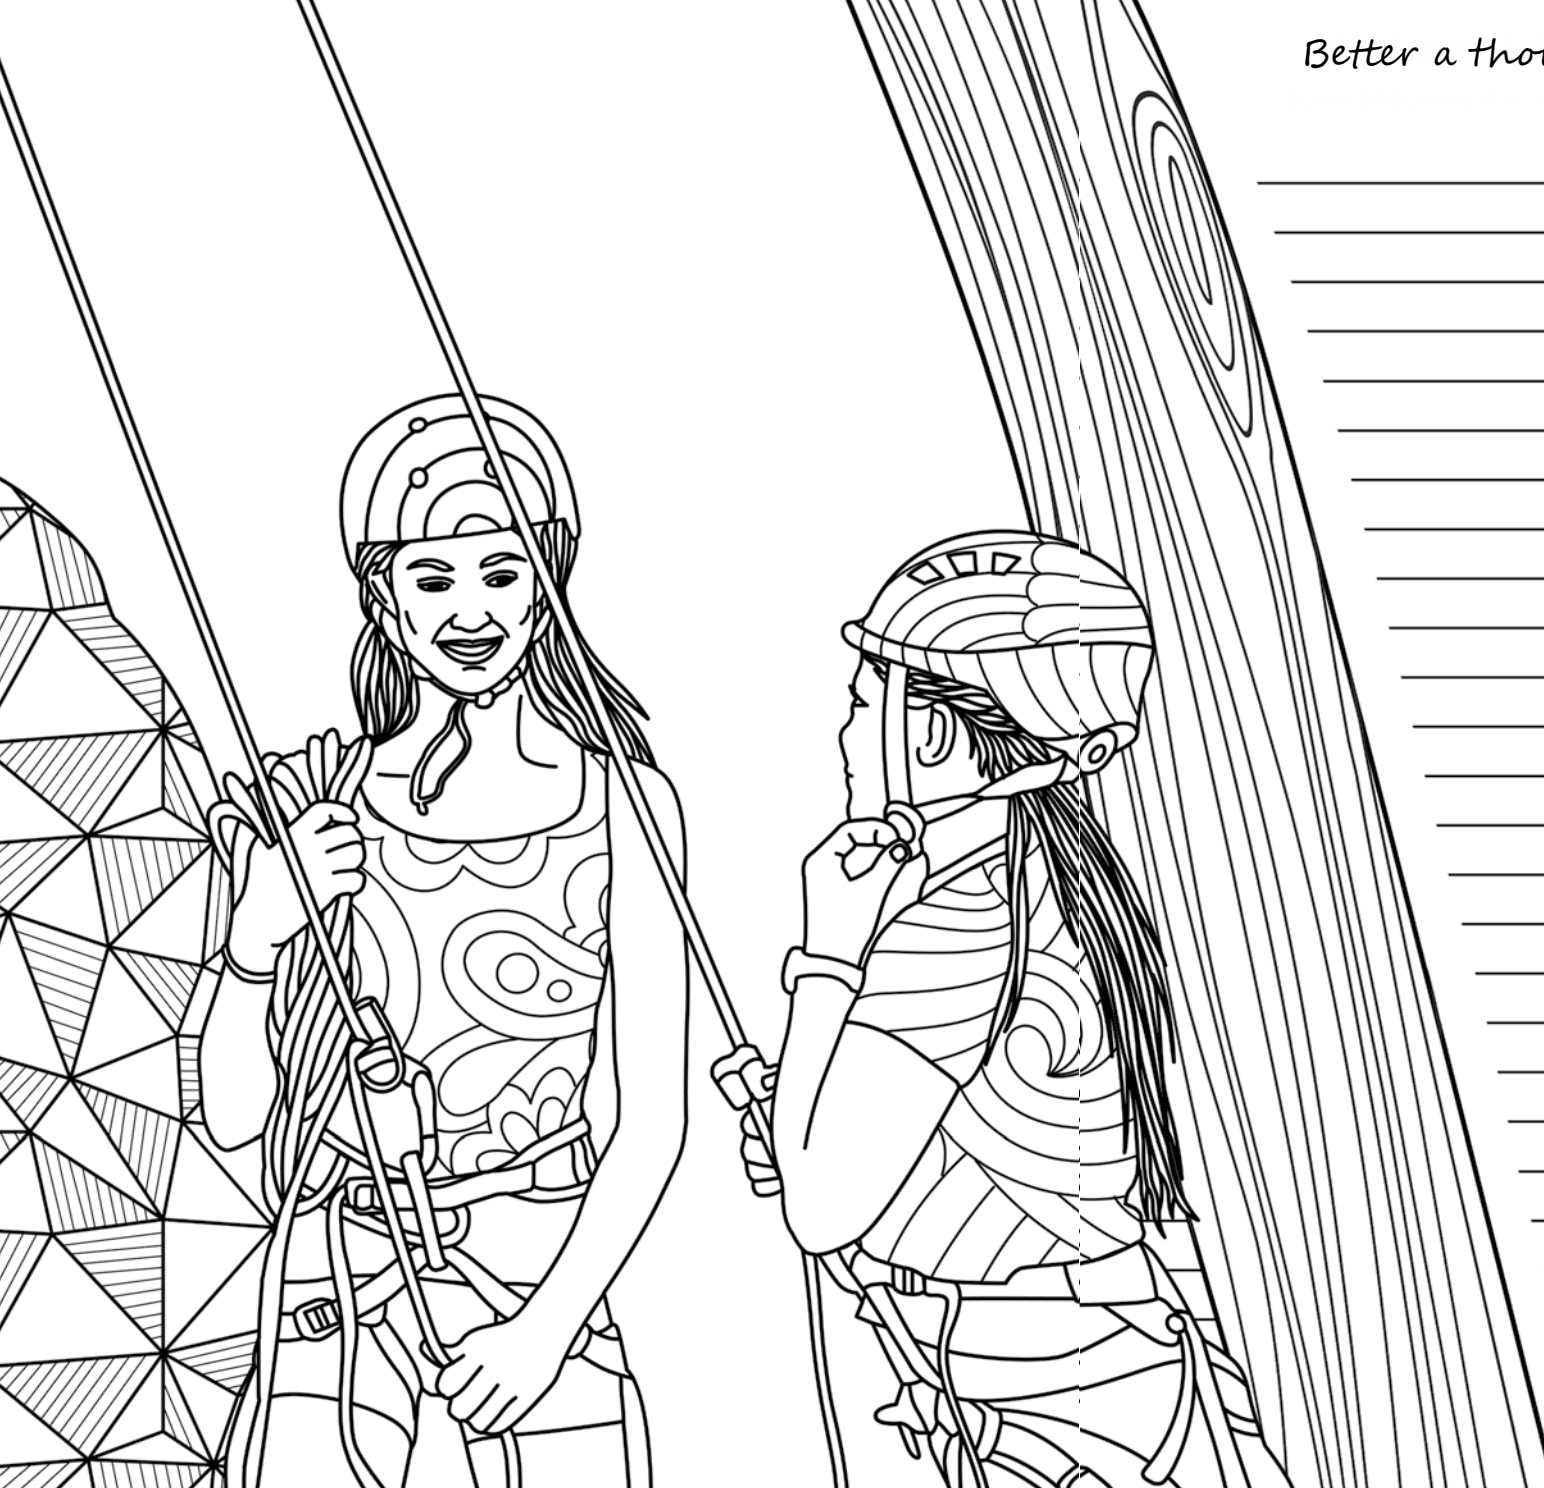

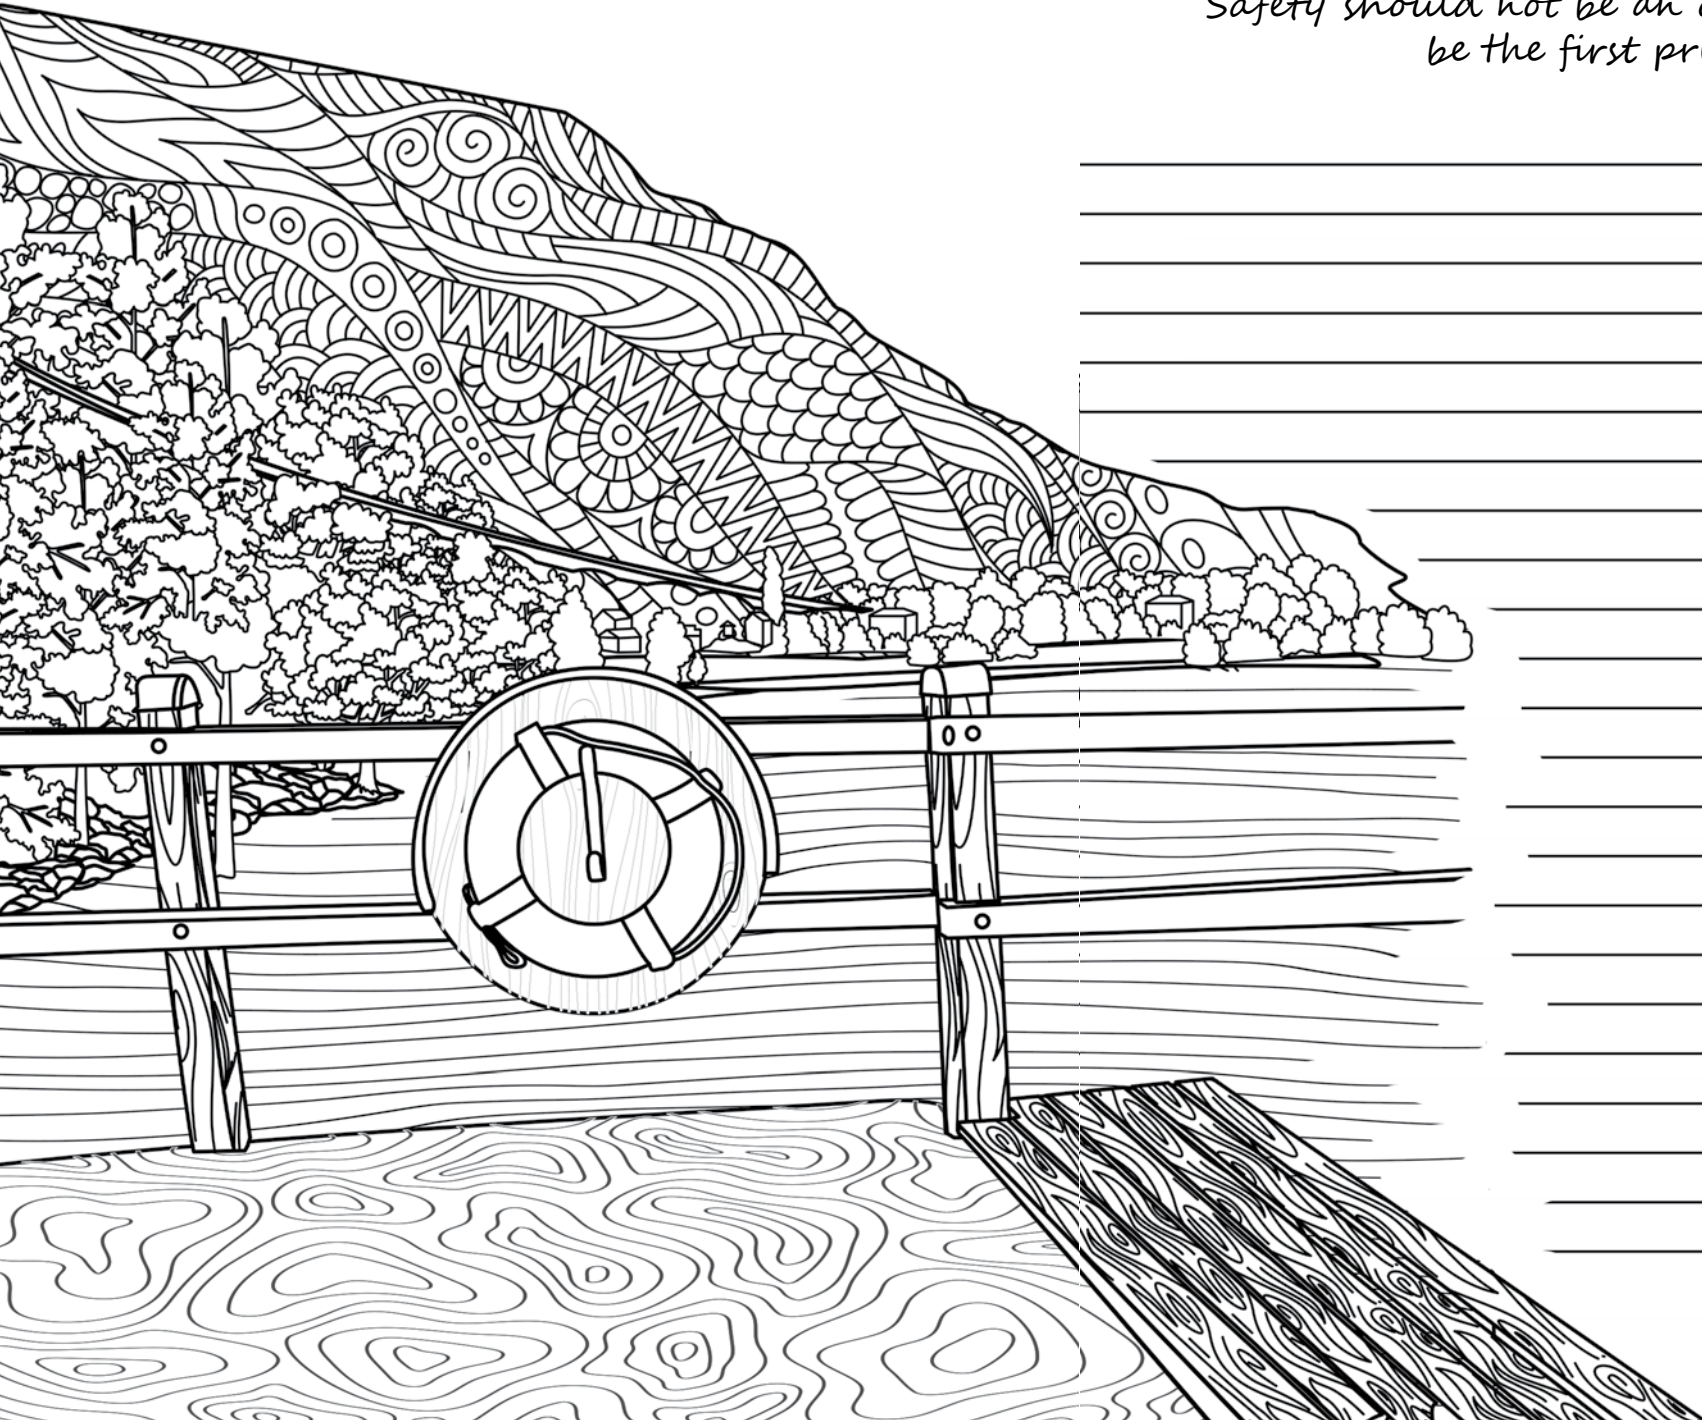

A decorative swirl pattern, resembling a stylized flower or a piece of fabric, is located on the left side of the page. It is composed of several concentric, swirling lines that create a sense of movement and depth. The pattern is black and white, matching the overall aesthetic of the notebook.

Words and signs do not save people. It is the ability of the people to follow them that keeps them safe.

Safety should not be an option. It should be the first priority.

At the end of the day, the goals are simple:
safety and security.

The practice of safety should start today and not tomorrow, for tomorrow may be too late for it.

This image shows a blank sheet of white paper with horizontal blue ruling lines. On the left side, there are several stylized, black-outlined leaf or petal shapes arranged vertically, resembling a decorative border. The paper is otherwise empty, with no text or other markings.

A detailed black and white line drawing of a seashell, likely a nautilus or similar cephalopod shell, shown in profile. The shell features a prominent spiral structure with numerous concentric ridges and a pointed apex. It is positioned on the left side of the page, partially overlapping the horizontal ruling lines.

Safety - it's cheaper than a trip to the ER.

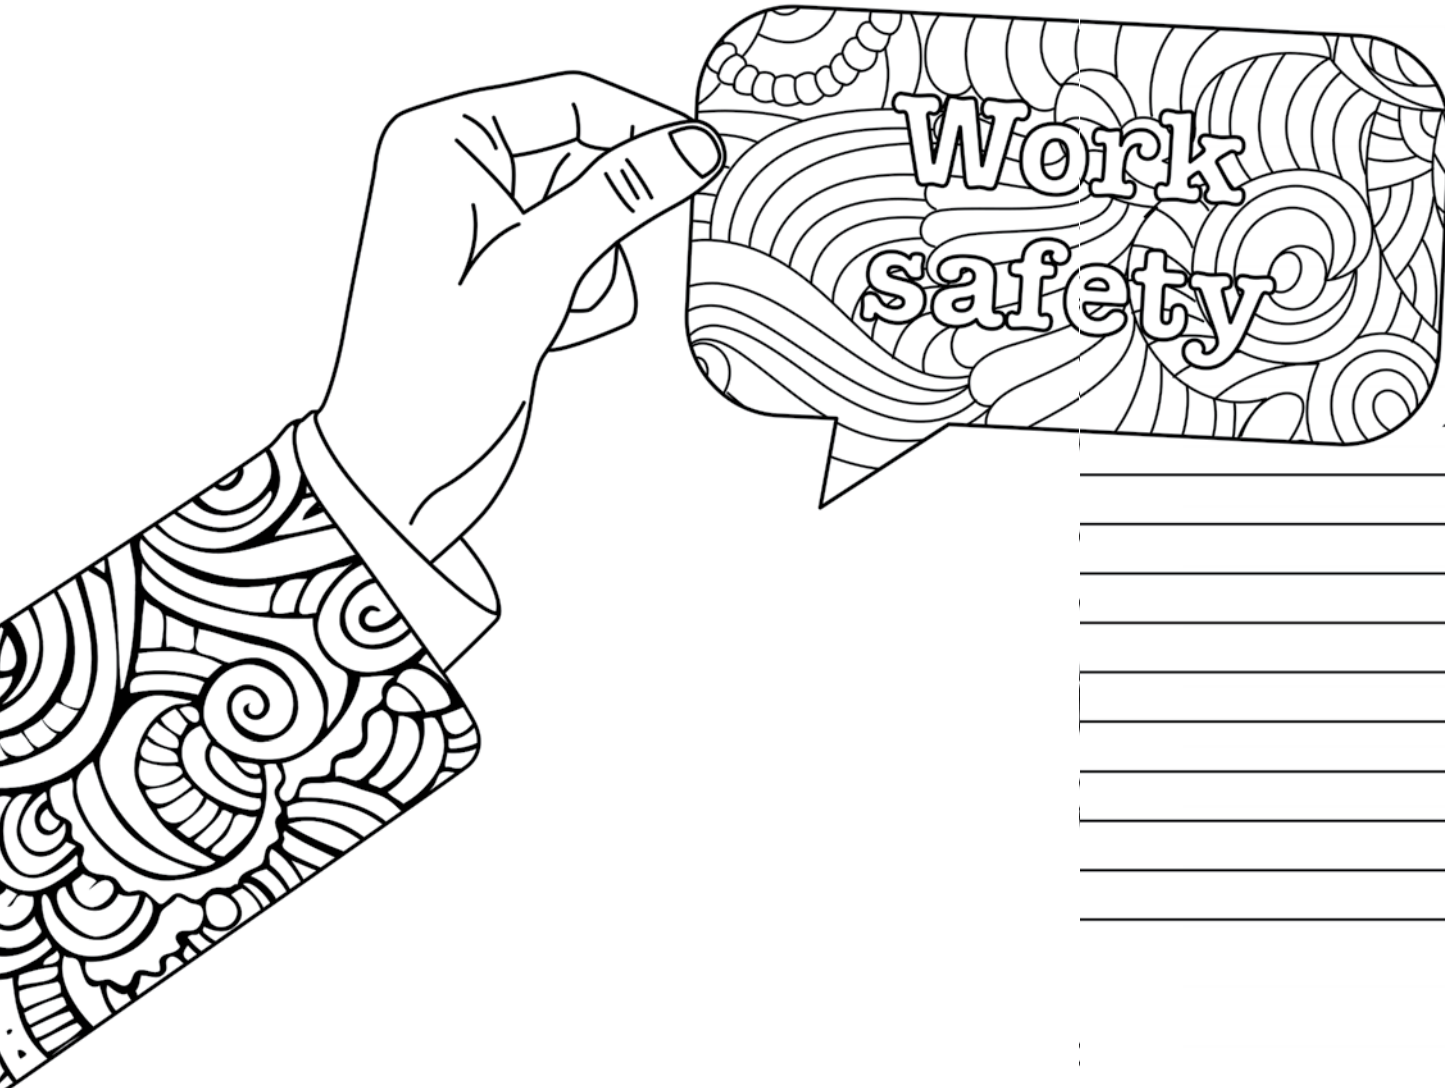

Precaution is better than cure.

The safest RISK is the one you didn't take.

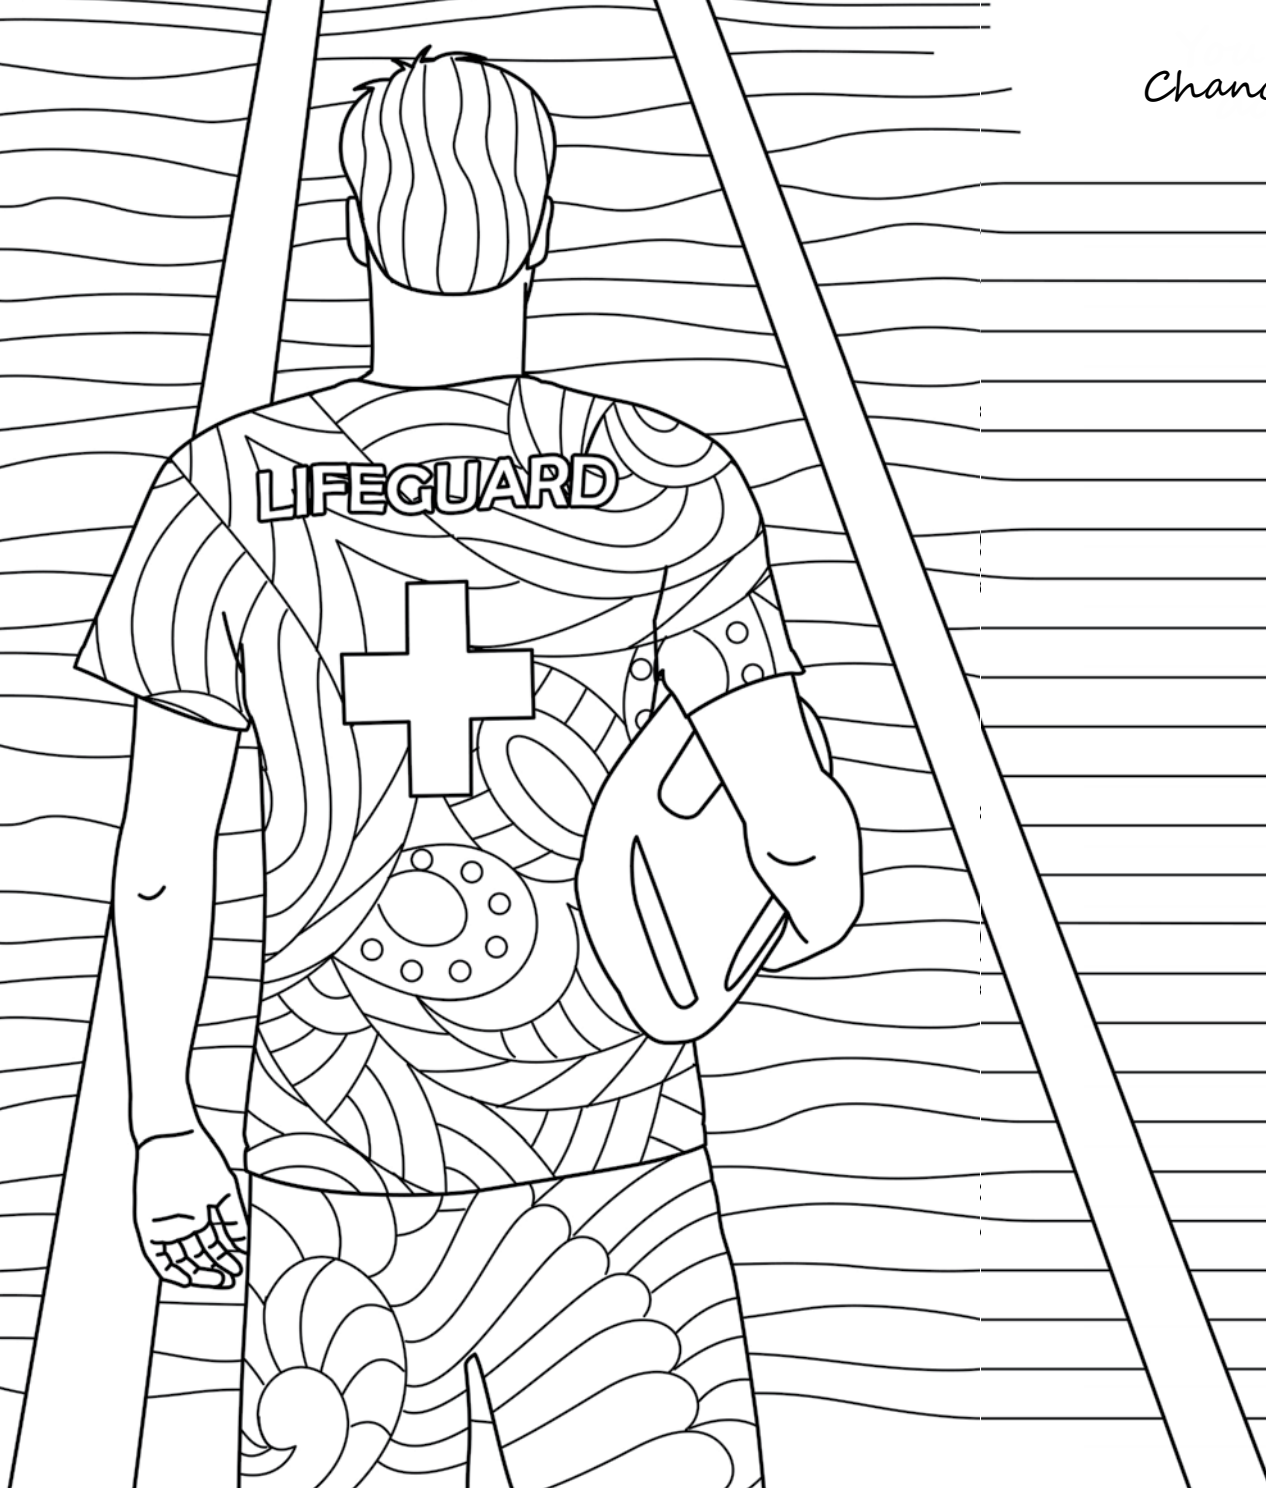

Two stylized, decorative clouds. The one on the left is smaller and more compact, while the one on the right is larger and more elongated, with more intricate swirling patterns. Both are drawn with simple black outlines.

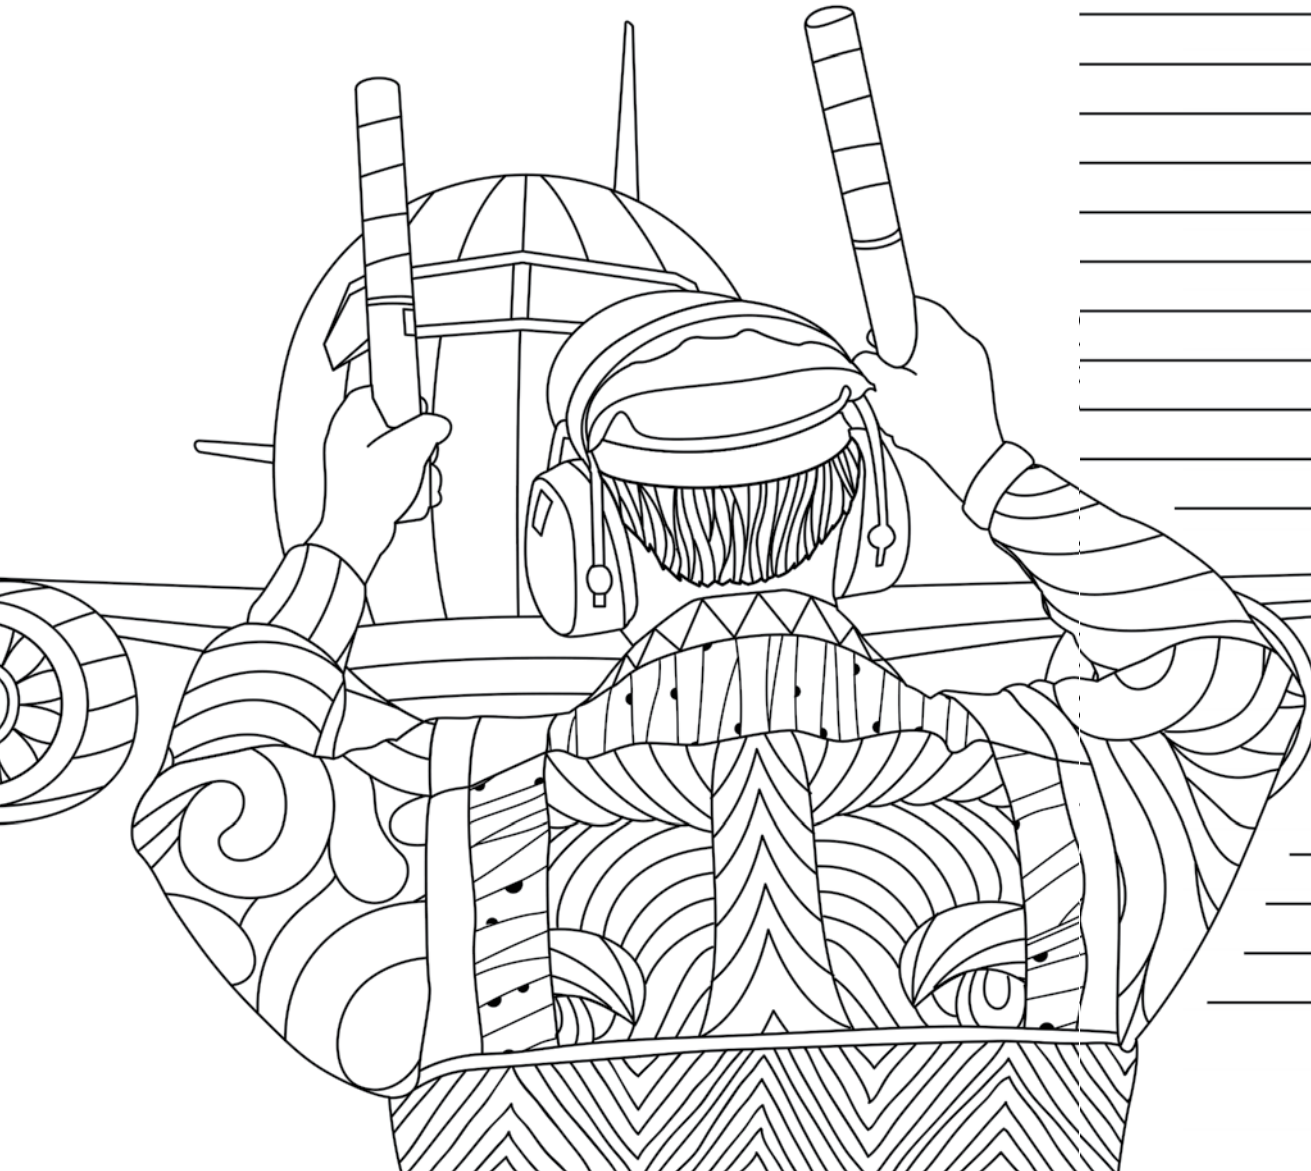

A line drawing of a vehicle's front end, showing a headlight and a bumper, positioned at the bottom left of the page. The drawing is simple and stylized, with the vehicle's body and bumper lines extending towards the center of the page. The rest of the page is filled with horizontal lines for writing.

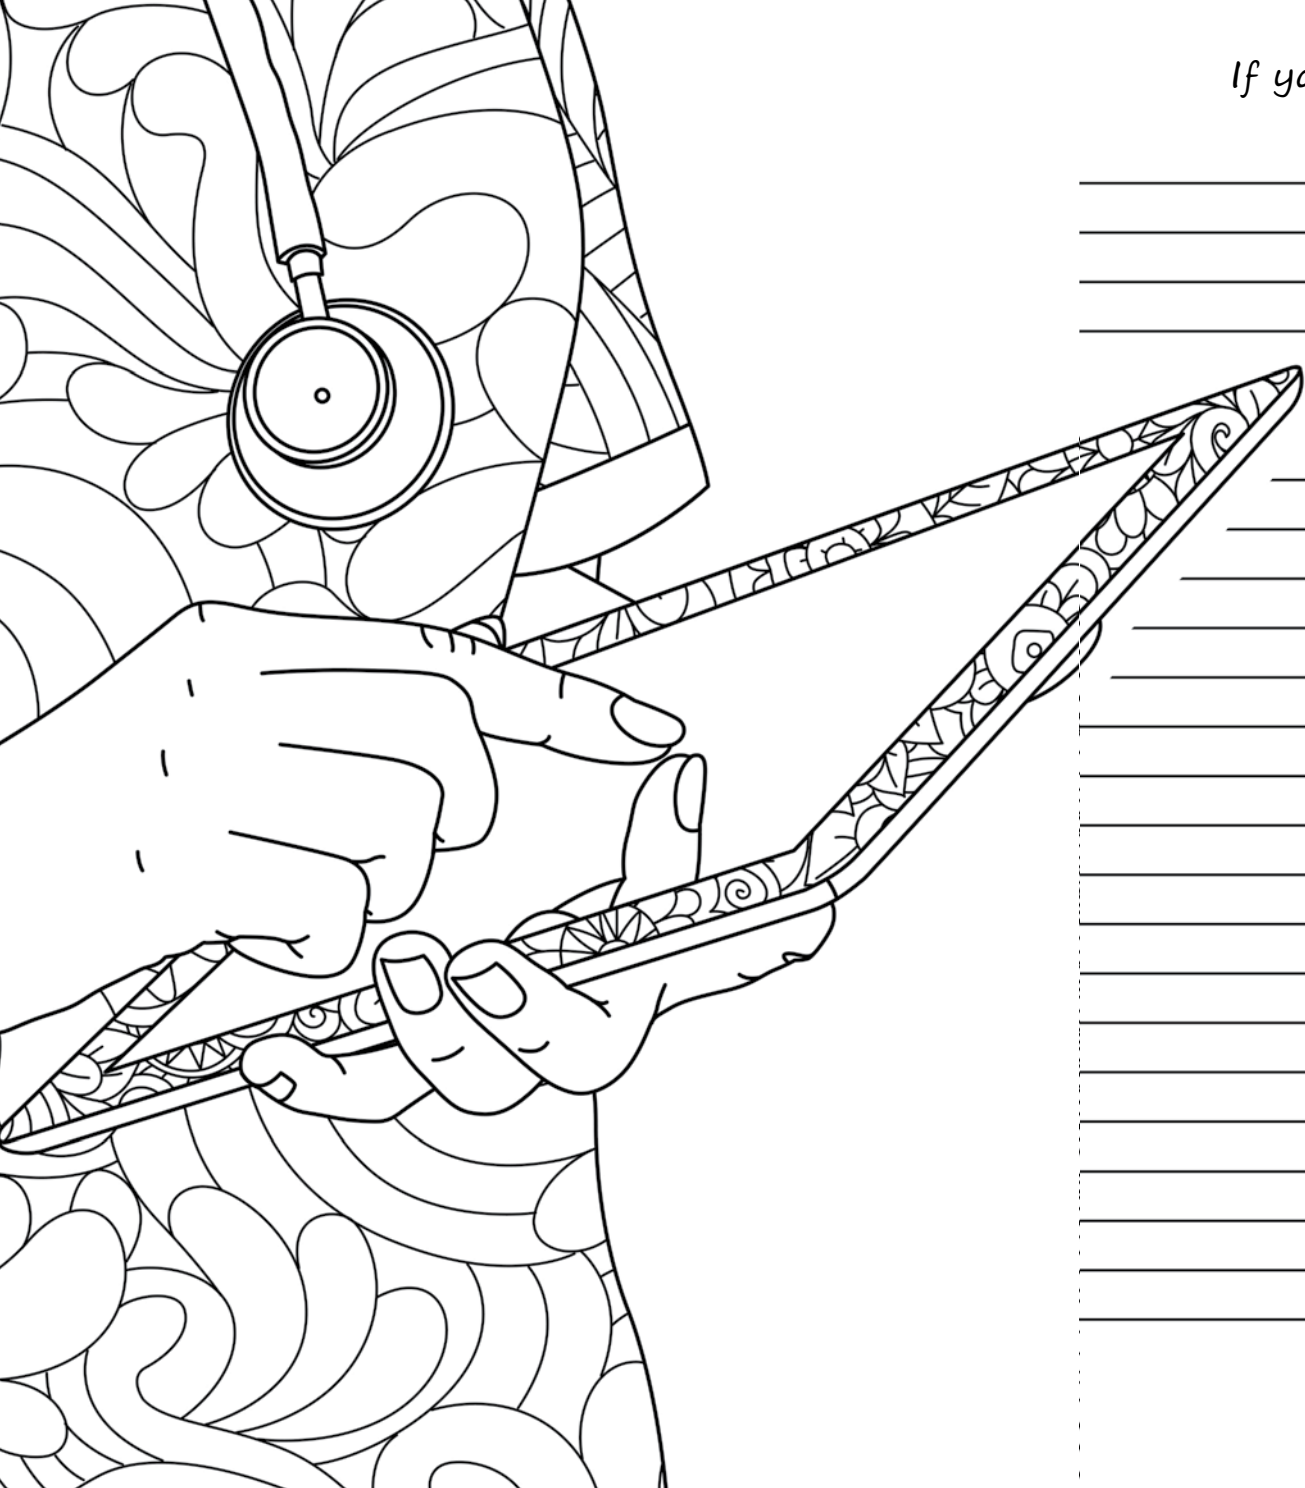

Chance takers are accident makers.

Respect the people who are ensuring and implementing the safety in a place because they are also ensuring yours.

If you're not safety conscious, you could end up unconscious.
